SEASON 1986/87

VIEWPOINT

Discussing freedom of contract for professional footballers in a newspaper interview, a well known League club manager expresses the view that it has damaged the game beyond all repair.

I am not sure I would go all the way with that sentiment and it could be that some sanity will eventually return in regard to contractual and financial demands — even forced upon the game.

When you see the steady flow of letters received from out of work players by most league clubs it adds some credence to the manager's statement that since 1981 the number of players on contract has been reduced by some 300.

Many clubs have reduced their playing staffs drastically in recent years and the smaller clubs are constantly facing problems when injuries and sickness strike. Something we have experienced here at Brunton Park.

Certainly, during a period when gates have been in decline, it seems incredible that there has been so much abuse of a players freedom to negotiate his own contractual terms.

Until commonsense prevails, more and more players will be forced out of the game, and that dreaded "Super League" will become a reality. But I believe that the root of the problem goes much deeper and much further back than 1981.

When the maximum wage was abolished at the beginning of the 60's, we started to move into an area of scandalously high transfer fees and exorbitant wage demands.

Many clubs started to offer incentive bonuses not just for gaining honours, but for avoiding relegation. Sums of £30 per point were quite commonplace and larger sums to be shared out at the end of a season.

Inevitably this led to a period of negative football where the game seemed to be more about not losing than winning. Many observers believe that this did more to drive fans away from the football stadia of England than any other factor.

Clubs now have to pay more to keep their best players and have to find more to attract players from other clubs. In many instances, Chairmen and managers now have to deal with a players financial adviser in drawing up contracts.

Because of the precarious financial situation of so many clubs nowadays the bigger clubs are able to snap up the best young players. The smaller clubs can't afford to turn down the transfer fees offered to them and in fact they appreciate that their best players will inevitably leave and hold out for the best deal they can get.

It is in fact the only way smaller clubs can survive nowadays which is very sad as it denies the manager the opportunity of building up a successful team.

If the game is to survive in its present form then the football authorities in this country may have to consider imposing once again a ceiling on wages and bonus payments.

The present system encourages greed and dishonesty. We want a return to honest endeavour and reasonable, not exorbitant wages. The Football League and the Football Association have the power to bring about radical reform before the game destroys itself. You cannot go on paying out money that is not coming in.

"Freedom of contract must go hand in hand with responsibility if football is to survive", comments our club manager.

I'll drink to that.

ON THE BRUNTON BEAT

A very Happy New Year to all our readers.

We ring in the New Year at Brunton Park with the visit of that famous old Lancashire club Bolton Wanderers, and extend to them, and their travelling fans, a hearty Cumbrian Welcome.

The "Trotters" were formed in 1874 and started out in life as Christ Church football club. The name was changed to the present one in 1877. The initial weekly subscription from members was one penny and as the club started up without any funds, the members each initially subscribed the sum of sixpence in order to purchase a football. Burnden Park became the club's permanent home in 1895.

One of the many busy people employed at Brunton Park is our Commercial Manager, Gordon Butterfield. We hope he will not be too occupied with the affairs of United to prevent him enjoying his birthday which falls on the 3rd of January. Happy birthday Gordon.

Congratulations and best wishes also to United defender Paul Baker who celebrates likewise on 5th January.

QUIZ time now: In season 1927/28, "Dixie" Dean broke the League scoring record by notching up a total of 60 goals. He also played a number of representative games that season which of course are not included. What was the total number of goals he actually scored — League and representative? We thought that this time of the year it might be interesting and nostalgic to look back at the Brunton Park scene 20 years ago.

In the 1966/67 season, the managerial reins were held by Alan Ashman, Dick Young organised the training and Herbert Nicholson was the club physiotherapist. The administration side was in the hands of David Dent the club secretary, a popular figure during his stay at Brunton Park.

The names of some of the players at that time will be familiar to many of you, and will bring back happy memories. "Geordie" McVitie, Chris Balderstone, Willie Carlin, Allan Ross, Peter Garbutt and the late Hughie Neil. Names to be conjured with.

United lost their opening match of the campaign, going down 2-4 to Crystal Palace at Selhurst Park. But that early defeat did not deter the "Blues" from having a successful season in the Second Division, finishing up in third spot behind the two promoted clubs, Coventry and Wolves.

And to wind up today's notes, we have great pleasure in printing a letter received from David Edwards of Whickham who writes on behalf of three Newcastle United supporters.

"I am one of the three Newcastle supporters who travelled down to Swindon with several members of your supporters club. I would just like to congratulate them on their intense loyalty, especially when you consider how easy it could be for them to travel elsewhere. I hope they are all eventually rewarded with some form of success their true support surely merits. Good luck for the rest of the season".

Thank you David, our fans are nothing if not loyal. True "Blues" indeed. Have a good day!

MEMORY LANE — ROY DICKINSON

Continuing our journey along the soccer events and highlights of yesteryear, we have now reached the year 1926 and are almost certainly in an area of time which will hold "live" memories as it were, for many of our older supporters. It was, in fact, in the following year that my father started taking me along with him on a Saturday afternoon to watch Newcastle United in action at St. James's Park and I still relish the memory of seeing the great Hughie Gallagher in action at the peak of his career. No doubt, I was taken along initially to get me from under my mother's feet. But I took to the whole exciting atmosphere like a duck to water and never needed any persuading to accompany my old man on the weekly excursions to Gallowgate (we went to the reserve matches too). My father seemed to be on friendly terms with a number of the players and ex-players and I can still remember being introduced to people like "Wilfy" Low, Andy McCombie, Tommy McDonald, Stan Seymour and others.

But I digress — carried away with nostalgia I guess — so back to the story line. The winners of the F.A. Cup in 1926 were Bolton Wanderers who defeated old rivals Manchester City 1-0. Bolton had of course won the cup at the first Wembley Final in 1923 and were gaining quite a Cup tradition. Huddersfield Town finished on top of the First Division thus completing three successive championships. A League match was broadcast "live" for the first time in 1926 and Albert Geldard made his debut for Second Division Bradford City at the tender age of 15. A new goal scoring phenomenon emerged in the 1926/27 season. Middlesbrough centre forward George Camsell scored 59 League goals. This was then a record for English League football, although it has to be said that they were all scored in the Second Division.

Newcastle United took the First Division title that season (and have never won it since). Huddersfield were again in contention, finishing as runners-up with Sunderland in third position. As Middlesbrough also won the Second Division title, it was a vintage season for the North East clubs.

The F.A. Cup went to Wales for the first (and only) time when Cardiff City defeated mighty Arsenal 1-0 at Wembley in the 1927 final.

Camsell's record did not last very long. It was smashed in the following season (1927/28) by the immortal W.H. ("Dixie") Dean who scored 60 League goals for Everton on their way to the First Division championship. Huddersfield were again runners-up and were defeated in the final of the F.A. Cup by Blackburn Rovers 3-1. Huddersfield sound a bit like the "Liverpool" of the 20's. I remember watching them play Newcastle United at St. James's Park around 1929/30. They beat United 4-1 and I can remember that "Tantobie" Smith was playing at outside left. His partnership with Clem Stephenson in the mid-twenties was a memory to be savoured. Stephenson gained two F.A. Cup winners medals (1913 and 1920) with Aston Villa, won another in 1922 with Huddersfield and then went on to lead them to those three successive championships. Ironically, when Clem won his Cup medal in 1920 when still with Aston Villa, it was Huddersfield Town they defeated!

WHO SAID WE DON'T SCORE GOALS ANYMORE?

There is no escaping the fact that football has lost an awful lot of its supporters in recent years. But are the missing millions staying away for valid reasons?

When we meet redundant fans in pubs, they usually moan that the game "lacks characters" or that "there are no exciting goalscorers anymore."

Facts contradict these arguments. Take goalscorers. Jimmy Greaves was no better than Clive Allen or Ian Rush when it comes to scoring goals. Allen's goal for Spurs on the recent live televised game at Manchester United was his 22nd in 22 games this season.

Six of the seven top scorers in the First Division were on target that weekend. For once the exception was Rush who struggled along with Liverpool as his side went down 0-2 at Watford.

Clive Allen, who has netted in each of Tottenham's four Littlewoods Cup ties, had scored in each of his last four First Division games. Six goals in four games in his current scoring rate.

Of course, there's still a long way to go and Allen will have a big task to maintain such a fabulous sequence.

Jimmy Greaves holds the all-time record of 357 goals in First Division football but only once did he manage to average a goal-per-game in a League season. Jimmy scored 41 times in 40 games for Chelsea in 1960/61.

Southampton's Colin Clarke may have exceeded even his own expectations in his first season of First Division football. He is the only player to score two hat-tricks in the First Division this season and, with 15 goals in 18 League matches, was not far short of Clive Allen's scoring rate.

It's not only in the First Division that the goals have been flowing aplenty. Richard Hill, of Fourth Division leaders Northampton Town, took his tally to 22 in 24 games with two in their amazing 4-4 draw at Southend in the second round of the F.A. Cup.

Hill had netted 20 times in 18 League matches whilst his club has scored 49 goals in its last 14 League Cup games.

During that 14-game sequence the Cobblers had only once scored fewer than three goals at home or away.

The move back towards attacking football has been growing season-by-season and that can now be found at all levels of the game. The Manchester United v Tottenham televised game under-lined the change in outlook of our leading managers.

When Spurs had come back from dead to turn a 0-2 deficit into a 3-2 lead at Old Trafford, we might have expected manager David Pleat to order his men back into defence to hold what they had got. With United rapidly running out of steam, and spirit, Tottenham could have sat on their lead and taken home three points.

Instead, they continued to attack, looking for more goals. By doing so, they left gaps at the back which ensured a dramatic finish to a classic game of football.

At least, it was a classic for fans. Many soccer purists, particularly coaches, could have pointed to tactical and individual errors on both sides. But, had both United and Spurs played it as a game of chess, it would probably have ended in a goalless bore.

Ordinary fans like to see players making mistakes. For it is mistakes that lead to goals, and goalmouth excitement. And that's what the game is all about.

Mr. Pleat knows that Tottenham will not now win the Championship. neither will they be relegated. So he is taking the opportunity of giving his many gifted players a free role to entertain.

Many other clubs, throughout the League, have been adopting a similar positive approach and this augurs well for supporters during the second-half of the season.

COMMERCIAL SPOTLIGHT

Much has been said about the Brunton Park pitch in recent months and no doubt the Club's views are aired in other parts of the magazine.

Suffice it to say that the club is going through a very difficult period. We, like all Sporting Organisations, need regular income to sustain the Club and its amenities. If we don't play matches, we don't derive that income.

You, as Supporters can help us to maintain the Cash-flow by supporting our 'Off the field' activities. You have that opportunity through the Daily Digit and Ground Improvement Club, so please help.

★ STAR VISITOR ★ PHIL NEAL

Phil Neal took over as Bolton's player-manager last season after 11 glorious years with Liverpool. But, when he left Anfield, he could hardly have expected to taste some more Wembley atmosphere so soon. He was in the Bolton side that met Bristol City in the final of last season's Freight-Rover Trophy.

He started his career with Northampton Town, often playing in midfield, and in 1972/73 he was their leading scorer. After six seasons in the Cobblers' senior team, he seemed destined for a career in the lower divisions of the Football League until Liverpool signed him in 1974 for £60,000.

It wasn't long before he had established himself at right-back and he played for England on 50 occasions. He was a member of each of Liverpool's four European Cup winning teams and he included seven League Championship medals among his large collection of trophies won at Anfield.

He earned a reputation for his consistency and he once went eight seasons without missing a game.

When the time came for him to contemplate the future, he had hoped to have remained at Anfield on the coaching staff. But the opportunity arose for him to go straight into management with Bolton last season and the challenge was too good to turn down.

BOLTON WANDERERS

Bolton player-manager Phil Neal was delighted with their 2-0 victory at Burnley that took them to the top of their qualifying group in the Freight-Rover Trophy shortly before the holiday. For the Trotters had been faring very badly away from home and it is hoped that confidence will now be restored as they try to improve upon away performances in the League.

By mid-December the Wanderers had won only once away from home in the Third Division — at Brentford (2-1) — and their only other away points had come from drawn games at Walsall (3-3), Middlesbrough (0-0) and Mansfield (2-2).

They were beaten at Bristol Rovers (0-1), Bournemouth (1-2), Fulham (2-4), Wigan (1-2), Rotherham (0-1).

Tony Caldwell seems set to become Bolton's leading scorer for the fourth season in succession. He led the way with 12 goals as the holiday games approached. Tony was signed from Horwich RM and his seasonal goal tally since being introduced to the Bolton side in 1983 is 22, 22 and 16.

Steve Elliott, Mark Gavin and George Oghani have also played in attack.

Elliott started his career with Nottingham Forest but got only limited opportunities in their first-team. He moved on to Preston, who paid a club record £95,000 in 1979, and was on three occasions their best marksman. Luton signed him for £60,000 in 1984 but, after only a few weeks, he moved on to Walsall. After scoring 17 times for the Saddlers last season, he was transferred to Bolton in the summer.

Gavin needs no introduction at Brunton Park for he played for us last season before moving on to Bolton. Mark began his career with Leeds and played 30 times in their League eleven.

Oghani was once with Bury but he then went non-League with Hyde United before Bolton spotted him. He made his League debut for the Trotters three seasons ago.

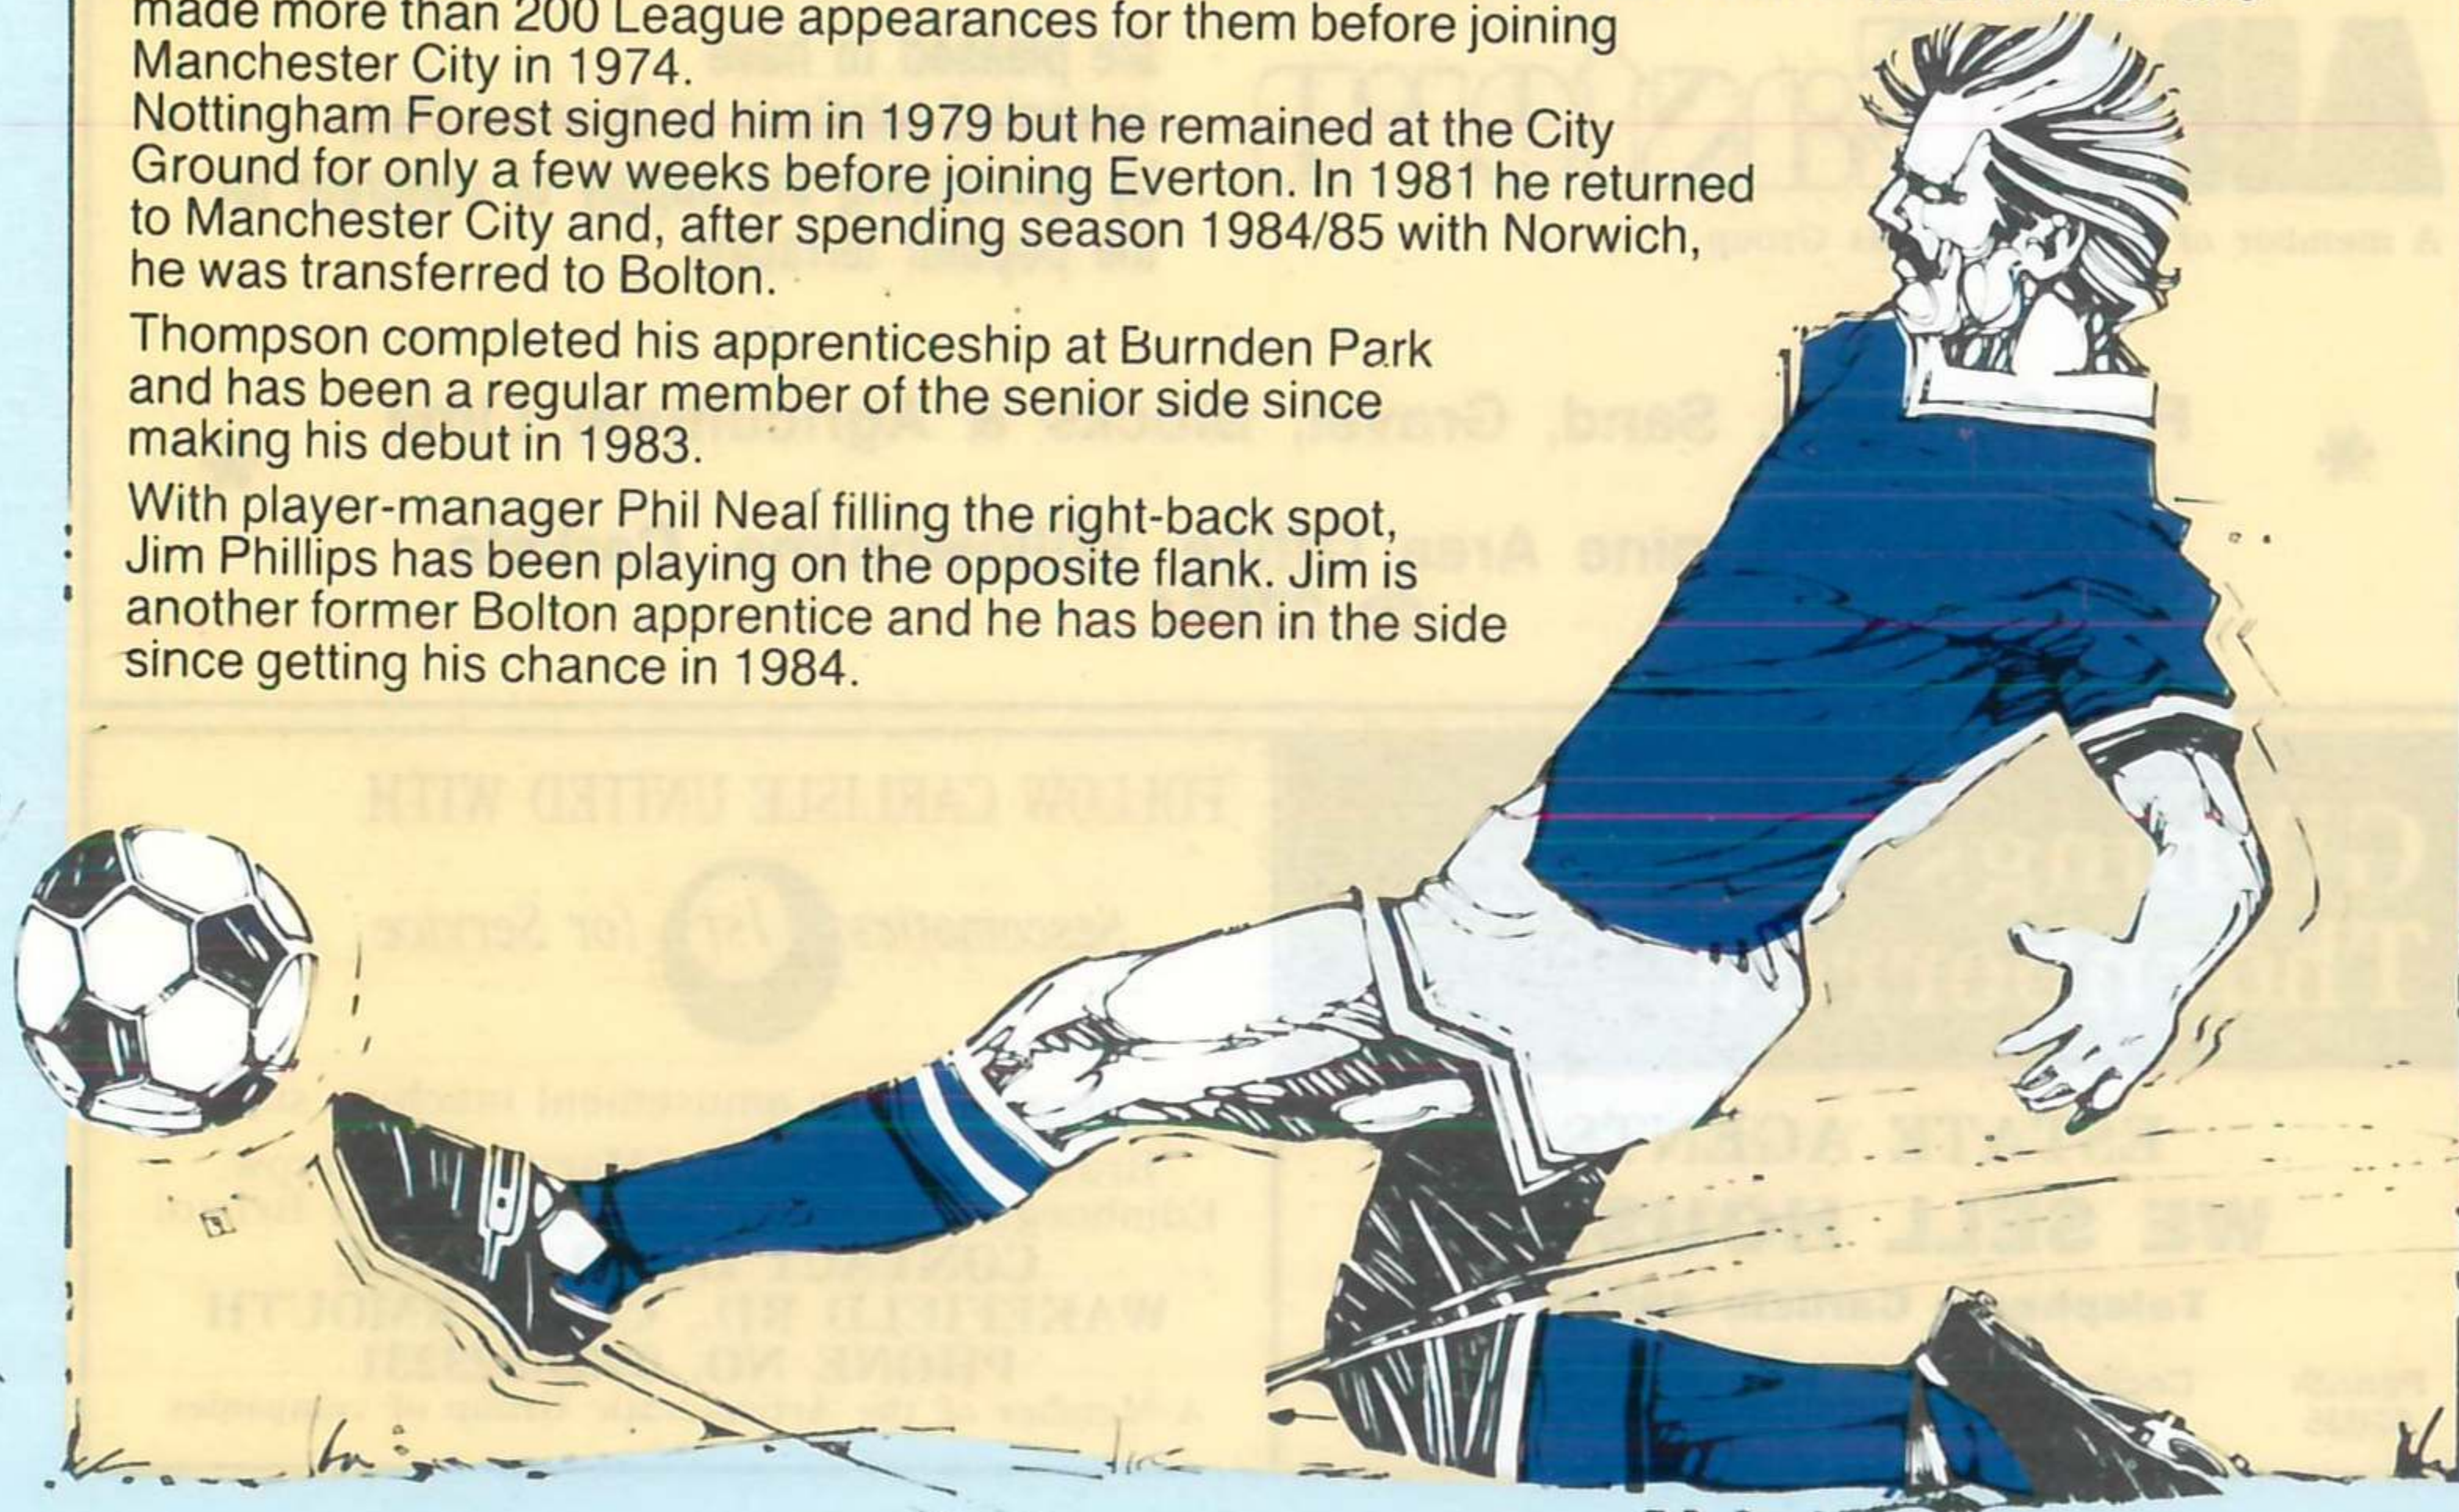

Asa Hartford and Steve Thompson have been holding their places in midfield.

Hartford, who played for Scotland on 50 occasions, started his career with West Bromwich and made more than 200 League appearances for them before joining Manchester City in 1974.

Nottingham Forest signed him in 1979 but he remained at the City Ground for only a few weeks before joining Everton. In 1981 he returned to Manchester City and, after spending season 1984/85 with Norwich, he was transferred to Bolton.

Thompson completed his apprenticeship at Burnden Park and has been a regular member of the senior side since making his debut in 1983.

With player-manager Phil Neal filling the right-back spot, Jim Phillips has been playing on the opposite flank. Jim is another former Bolton apprentice and he has been in the side since getting his chance in 1984.

There has been a high turnover of central defenders, Mark Came, Derek Scott, Warren Joyce, David Sutton and Julian Darby all playing here.

Came was discovered in junior football and he was introduced to the Wanderers' first-team two seasons ago.

Scott is a former England schoolboy international who developed in the junior teams at Burnley. After making his League debut for the Clarets in 1975, he made well over 300 first-team appearances before moving on to Bolton in 1985.

Joyce is a Bolton Discovery who was first blooded in the senior side in 1983.

Sutton began his career with Plymouth Argyle and was transferred to Huddersfield in 1978 following a loan spell with Reading. Bolton signed him in 1984.

Darby is a local lad who was introduced to the first-team last season.

Goalkeeper Mike Salmon got only one outing in Blackburn's League eleven but he enjoyed a good run whilst on loan to Chester in 1982/83. Stockport signed him at the end of that season and he joined Bolton in the last close-season.

Bolton are through to the third round of the F.A. Cup following a win at Halifax (3-1) after two drawn games in the first round and a 2-0 home win over Tranmere at the next stage. They now have to visit Coventry in round three.

They took an early exit from the Littlewoods Cup. After losing at Bury (1-2) they could only draw the second-leg 0-0.

Bolton finished top of their qualifying group in the Freight-Rover Trophy after a home win over Blackpool (1-0) and that 2-0 success at Burnley. Bolton are hoping to repeat last season's success in this competition. They went all the way to Wembley but lost 0-3 in the final to Bristol City.
